NEW YORK, May 31, 1802.

Colonel Hamilton, formerly the Secretary to our Minister at the Court of Madrid, has arrived in the ship Pennsylvania from Lisbon.

Interesting news from Guadaloupe.

We learn, by a well-informed French gentleman, who was passenger in the schooner Sullan (arrived here last evening) that from the 18th to the 24th of May, the Island of Point-Petre, (Guadaloupe, owing which time he was on the wharfs to the following particulars.

A French squadron from Brest, consisting of three ships of the line, two frigates and a number of transports, with between 9 and 6000 troops on board, under the command of Vice-Admiral Bouden and general Richepanse, arrived off Point-Petre; and after landing that rebellious would be made by Pelage, the mulatto commander of Guadaloupe, they attacked the fort, which, after a short resistance, surrendered.

The day after they took possession of Point-Petre, the troops proceeded to Baillif, where they met with but a feeble remote resistance from general Delgares; but were finally successful in taking it by storm, and drawing all who opposed them. A number of the black troops however, retreated to the Grande-Terre where they concentrated their forces. They were pursued by the French, and, when accounts left the Island, the Point Petre, the fleet was bombarding that fortress, and both armies were engaged in battle.

Our informant adds that when the Sullan touched at Martinique, there was no news, by few a number of wealthy come into that harbour full of women and children from Guadaloupe; and was informed by them that a great many of them had embarked on board of different vessels, and had sailed for other islands.

The above fleet sailed from Brest four days after the signing of the Definitive Treaty, and left touch at Martinique.

The above statement comprises the counties of Western district, Western and Southern only, the votes of which last year, for electors, were, for the highest federal candidate 22, for the republicans 68. For the Congress Pennsylvania, Libertys of Member of Congress the probable result of Southern the votes at 600 majority for the Republican ticket. That has the western district, hitherto the firmest hold of federalism, in this state, wonderfully changed its political spirit.
