WASHINGTON CITY.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 11.

DIED, in the city of Washington, on Sunday last, Mrs. Diana Maria Ray, wife of James Ray, Esq. and daughter of the late Col. Strahan of the British army. Her gentleness of manners endeared her to all her acquaintance; while the elevation of her mind amidst scenes of peculiar distress, her humility beneath the hand of Heaven that was upon her, and her calmness in the hour of death, exhibited an example for the imitation of her survivors. An absent husband, and two infant children remain to embalm her memory with their tears.

MARRIED by the Rev'd Mr. Knox, on May 1st. John G. Dickson of the city of Washington, to Elizabeth Raser of Frederick town.

MATTHEW CLAY is re-elected to Congress, by a very great majority.

An election was held by the Stockholders of the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal, at Wilmington, on Monday and Tuesday. The result is as follows:

Name	Votes	State
President.
Joseph Tatnall,	1371	Delaware.
Directors.
James A. Bayard,	1376	Delaware.
Kensey Johns,	965	Delaware.
Samuel Chew,	1417	Maryland.
George Gale,	1444	Maryland.
John Adlum,	1455	Maryland.
Wm. Tilghman,	1455	Pennsylvania
James C. Fisher,	1414	Pennsylvania
George Fox,	1451	Pennsylvania
Joshua Gilpin,	1411	Pennsylvania

It is said in a late London paper that M. Otto is appointed Ambassador from the French Republic to his Prussian Majesty.

The famous Klopstock, died at Hamburgh on the 13th of March, in the 76th year of his age.

A Grenada paper of the 11 of March, says—"We are exceedingly sorry to learn that the yellow fever has lately raged with the utmost violence in the Island of Antigua; no less than 50 of its inhabitants had fallen victims to that malady in the course of 2 weeks, among whom was his Excellency Lord Lavington's Secretary, and several others of his suite."

LEBOO

WILL cover the ensuing season, to commence the first day of April, and end on the last day of June, on Mondays and Tuesdays at Queen Anne; Wednesdays and Thursdays at the farm of the subscriber, and Fridays and Saturdays at Bladensburg; at the rate of 16 dollars per Mare, cash, and half a dollar to the groom; the money to the groom to be sent with the mare, and a note for the balance, with the assumption of Messrs. Claggett or Hodges, of Queen Anne, or Messrs. Lowndes or Bruce, of Bladensburg, payable on the first day of December next, will be received.

Leboo is eight years old, a fine bright bay, 15 hands three inches high, a star and two white feet. He has proven himself both a sure and good foal-getter, having covered at four years old 25 mares all of whom proved with foal; the colts are equal in size and beauty to any in this part of the country, and except in two instances, they were alike as to colour. At four years old Leboo won the colt's purse at Annapolis; on the next day he won the City purse, and on the third day he won a purse in Prince George's county, immediately after having travelled upwards of 30 miles. The next spring, at 5 years old, he won the first day's purse at Canton; the fall after he run against Mr. Tayloe's Leviathan, at Alexandria, one heat, was lame and drawn; a few days after he won the first day's purse at Govan's town. At 6 years old he won the first day's purse at Canton; the fall after he won the purse again at Canton, the jockey club purse at Govan's town, the purses at Frederick town, and the city of Washington; running nine miles, by mistake, at the last mentioned place, beating Mr. Tayloe's Leviathan. At seven years old he received a forfeit of 900 dollars at Havre-de-Grass, proceeded on to German town, won the first heat, afterwards fell lame, and was beat by Gen. Ridgely's Hamlet, whom he had beaten three times before.

Leboo was got by High Flier, his blood and figure equal to that of any other horse, and his pedigree may be seen by applying to the subscriber.

TAKE NOTICE.

I WILL sell five hundred and fifty acres of Land whereon I live, in Fairfax county, within five miles of the court house, and within twenty of the City of Washington, Alexandria, Dumfries, and twelve of the Ocaquon mills, it is a healthy situation, the land fertile, and has about two hundred acres of wood to cut, there is a great proportion of white and red oak, popular and hickory timber—There is nearly one hundred acres of prime land for meadow, I will give six months credit for one fourth of the purchase money—twelve months for the other quarter, eighteen for the third, and two years for the last payment, a purchaser will find me on the premises.

THOS POLLARD.

Feb. 21st. tf.

For the National Intelligencer.

Every candid and unprejudiced person who will take a retrospective view of the measures which were adopted by the late administration, and compare them with those which have taken place since Mr. Jefferson has been at the head of the government, cannot fail of doing justice to the superior talents and patriotism which distinguish the present from the former administration; but a set of vile incendiaries amongst us, have been and still are endeavouring to disturb the public tranquility, and to induce the people to withdraw their confidence from their best friends and benefactors.

It is a well known fact that the leaders of the faction stiling themselves federalists, have been endeavoring ever since the revolution, to establish a monarchy or an aristocracy on the ruins of our present excellent constitution. But fortunately for our country, the vigilance of the republicans have prevented them, and compelled them to abandon the helm of state, and have placed in their stead men, long distinguished for their virtues, patriotism and abilities. It is not at all surprising that men thus disappointed in the accomplishment of an object so dear to them, should be hostile to the administration. But when we recollect that these same persons about three years ago were preaching up the doctrine of "passive obedience and non-resistance," we should suppose that their opposition would be conducted with some degree of decency and respect for the constituted authorities of their country. We find however that calumny and misrepresentation is carried to as great excess by this faction, as it ever was by the most violent jacobins, that ever existed since the commencement of the French revolution.

Although, there are I believe few examples, either in ancient or modern History of a victorious party acting with so much moderation and liberality towards their opponents, as the republicans in this country have done, for it cannot be denied, that a vast number of the opposition party have been retained in office notwithstanding their avowed hostility to the government—Yet we find that nothing will reconcile these persons to an administration, unless they or their partizans are at the head of it. The deep rooted prejudices which they have so long imbibed can never be eradicated. In a word this faction seem to have sworn eternal hatred to the President, and every other distinguished republican in this country.

The friends of the administration have been for some time past inactive. The opposition party have not failed to improve this to their advantage. They have succeeded in getting a few of their partizans elected in the place of republicans. This they vainly attribute to a decrease of the friends of the government. But altho' we have no reason to believe this to be the case, still the indefatigable exertions of the enemies of the administration, ought to arouse its friends from that supineness into which they have lately fallen. The olive branch has been rejected, and all hopes of a reconciliation seem to be at an end. The republicans should therefore act with a degree of firmness and decision worthy of the cause for which they so nobly contended.

LONDON, March 13.

After a short, deceitful slumber, we are awakened to the prospect of a war of extirpation:—the vision of peace, to which the splendid acquirements of an arduous, glorious contest were sacrificed, has vanished, even while the wounds which achieved it are still bleeding. We are told, it is true, that the points in discussion may be amicably adjusted, and we embrace the hope with fervency; yet with a bold, aspiring, and vindictive rival, rankling under defeat, and ever watching, per fas a que nefas, for the moment of advantage, we fear there can never be any permanent security to us, or part of Europe, but what must be enforced at the point of the sword.

Malta, it is said, is the immediate object in dispute; our government considering the changes which have taken place in Italy, such as to warrant the retention of that Island. It is a proud maxim, however, in our national creed, that nothing can warrant a breach of compact; we have ever lamented the surrender of Malta; but we should blush to purchase its integrity. We have acted imprudently in giving it up, but we should not repair the error by a violation of faith. It is true, the treaty of Amiens was abused by France, by twenty encroachments, even while the Commissioners were yet discussing it; still perfidy in another cannot justify perfidy in us; and if we are again to be involved in the horrors of war, we trust at least, we shall have the consolation of combating in a just and honourable cause, and not to evade the performance of a bounden obligation.

We are inclined to believe, however, that there are other and more worthy causes for the hostile position of our government; we are told, that when our ambassador at Paris inquired the occasion of the armaments making along the coasts of France and Holland, reply was made, that "they are designed for the amusement of the Consul, and for the exercise and occupation of the troops; and on his lordship pressing for a more consistent answer, he was informed, that "he might ascribe to them such further objects as he thought proper." If such be the fact, it is time to arm; further concession must be alike unavailing and disgraceful; while we have a penny, or a drop of blood left, it will be better to spend the one, and spill the other, than endure, in patient ignominy, the repeated insults that have thus far been the sole return for our forbearance.

Bonaparte tells us, that England, unaided by Continental Alliances, can no longer hope to cope with France. Has he then forgotten the events of the last years of the war, when Britain alone defied the concentrated power of France, and in every point of contact triumphed over it; or has he forgotten, that when his artifices engaged almost the whole of Europe in hostility against us, that he only created to us fresh scenes for victory! If he has forgotten his discomfiture at Acre, and the horrid expedient to which he was reduced to secure his escape from Syria; if he has forgotten his disgraceful flight from Egypt, it must at least be admitted, that he has a most courteous memory. "Teach me to forget," exclaimed Themistocles—'Tis the recourse of defeat and infamy. The Consul needs the palliative, and we do not envy him the possession.

Should it however, be unavoidable to have again recourse to the sword, what warrants the opinion of the first consul, that we must encounter him single handed—does he then, reckon nothing of his injuries to America; nothing of the oppression of Switzerland and Piedmont; nothing of the attempts at still subjugating Holland; does St. Domingo afford no diversion in our favour? Are his ships in that quarter in no danger? Can he see nothing dangerous to his overweeping ambition in the new rational government of Russia? And will Germany, yet sore with insults and injustice, want much persuation to seize a favourable moment for avenging itself?

Peace is essential to the happiness both of Britain and France, and we shall rejoice to find it consolidated. If war is unavoidable we should encounter it with confidence and energy. Our Ministers have abundant proof of the sincerity of their wish for peace, in the sacrifices which they made to obtain it; its preservation must doubtless, be still more an object of desire to them, because they are now in a less favorable situation for the prosecution of war than they were at the period of signing preliminaries. We have, in honest, misapplied confidence, surrendered our conquest, dismanted our navy, and disbanded our army; but our public spirit, thank Heaven, is unbroken—our loyalty to the King—our attachment to the Constitution; our love of liberty; are unimpaired; our heroes, accustomed to victory, live to retrace the paths of glory; and to the calls of our country, every heart is responsive and obedient.

WILLIAM BRENT.

Washington, May 11. tf

For sale or rent.

I will either SELL OR RENT a very handsome & commodious dwelling house and lot, situated at the corner of Gay and Congress streets in George-town:—The lot has a front of 180 feet; and there are on it a good stable, carriage house, smoke-house, and dairy. This property is at present in the occupation of Walter Smith, Esq. to whom application may be made.

I will also sell or rent a very comfortable two story dwelling house, together with some other small buildings, on lot No 2, square 289 in the city of Washington, a few doors east of the bank—application may be made to me by letter at this place, or to Mr. Boud, adjoining the premises.

Also for sale a very valuable tract of land about 7 miles from George-town, in Montgomery county, on the river road. This tract contains upwards of 200 acres, the greater part of which is covered with wood and valuable timber; and there is already made, near 30 acres of timothy meadow, and nearly as much more may be made: it is within a mile of the navigation of the Potomac river, which affords an easy conveyance for wood, hay, &c to market. Its contiguity to the seat of government renders it an object worthy the attention of any one disposed to purchase.

Also about 320 acres of land on the navigable water of the Potomac, and is distant from Alexandria about 12 miles, from this place 3 miles; the greater part of which is covered with wood and timber; the soil is good, some meadow is already made and a considerable quantity more may be made.

Likewise 1000 acres of land in Monongalia county, state Virginia—This land is of very good quality and in the vicinity of Morgan town.

Any person desirous of purchasing any of the aforesaid property may be accommodated on moderate terms and indisputable titles will be given, on application to me at this place.
