It is a pleasure to state as a foreword that it is solely because of the interest in and knowledge of matters genealogical of Mr. Francis V. Morrell, a son of one of my former employers, that this work has been produced. To him we are indebted for most all of the documentary information, the arrangement of the book and its complete index, as well as the careful editing of fragmentary family records and the solution of perplexing problems of descent.

This name is Teutonic, appearing as Tybalt, meaning people's prince. It is found in several forms, among them the Danish, Theobald; Dutch, Tiebout; French, Thibaut; German, Dietbold, and Italian, Teobaldo. It has also appeared Thieboult.

* The supply of lead for bullets was very limited in the colonies. Pewter dishes were melted and weights were taken from the fishing nets. By a "Resolve" of the Provincial Congress over one hundred tons of Window Leads were taken from the houses in New York. This lead was paid for after the close of the war at the rate of nine pence per pound.

RIKEN'S HISTORY OF HARLEM

JAN TIBOUT

FOUNDER OF THE TIEBOUT FAMILY IN AMERICA.

Riker, in his History of Harlem, says: "Bruges was the last Flemish town as we approach the Dutch border, distant eight miles from the coast and ten miles south of Sluis. It was six years under Protestant rule, but on May 22, 1582, submitted to the King of Spain. By degrees the Protestant population forsook it and so did the good Jan Tibout, the Tiebout ancestor, for a dozen years town clerk and voorleser (reader) at Harlem, where he received a salary of three hundred guilders and his family to occupy the town house.

"Jan Tibout was born at Bruges and after emigrating lived for a short time at Fort Casimir, on the Delaware River, where he was in 1656, and whence coming, he and his wife, Sarah Vander Vlucht, joined the church at New Amsterdam in January, 1660. There, says Winfield, and at Flatbush (save while at Bergen, where he was Court Messenger in 1662, and took the oath of allegiance to the English November 20, 1665), he spent most of the ensuing years till he came to Harlem. He was voorleser from 1685 until 1690, when for a year Gulliam Bertholf took his place, but resuming his office in 1691, he served yet six years, and probably until Adrian Vermeule was employed in 1699. Thence, and at least until 1709, he held the same office at Bushwick."

Jan Tibout was schoolmaster of Flatbush, and precentor of the church from 1681 to 1682 (as per Strong's Flatbush, page 109).

"In January 1669 (page 157 Liber D Flatbush records), Jan Tibout appears to have been in possession of the school lot and property of that town, for at that date he complained to the magistrates of Abram Joorise (Brinkerhoff) for encroaching on his premises. There being an agreement entered into December 25, 1666, N. S. (as per page 87 of said Liber D), it appears that this agreement was made with Tibout, and that he commenced his services at Christmas, 1668, continuing there until about November 1, 1670, when Jacob Joorstin commenced, and was succeeded by Jan Gerretse Van Marken. On November 4, 1681, he appears to have been again employed continuing until July 30, 1682, when he removed to New York."

BERGEN.

"It was three-quarters of a century after the new church in Harlem was built before the congregation secured a pastor. The ministry of Silyns seems to have gone smoothly till the breaking out of the Leisler troubles in 1680. The Dutch at Harlem, with them Tibout, the voorleser, generally opposed Leisler's course. Tibout had closed his services on preparation day, April 23, 1690. He resumed his old place September, 1691, and continued to serve the Harlem Church six, if not eight, years, when he entered on a term at Bushwick. He owned lot No. 13 in Harlem in 1691.

"The Secretary, Tibout, on December 13th made the accounts for the building of the church, the details of which appear in the records."

RIKER.

He married for his second wife, Hester Du Bois, widow of Claude Delamaitre, and on her erf (garden) right drew lot 13 on Jochan Pieter's Hills which was sold to John Dyckman. An antenuptial agreement is of record relating to the division of certain lands owned by Jan and his second wife, between their respective children.

Whether he left property at the time of his death is not known. His will, if he made one, does not appear in the records at the Surrogate's Office in New York.

AT THE COLONY IN THE DELAWARE RIVER.

January 8, 1657—"Before the Council appeared Louwrens Pieters, being summoned, and deposes that there were savages at his place who drank beer obtained at Boertjen's. He found at his place five savage men, two women and a boy who had fetched a water pail of beer from Boertjen's and drank it at his place, where he, deponent, his wife and Jan Tybout drank with them, etc.

"Jan Tibout came forward and deposes that he was at Lauwrens Pieters' house and saw that there were five savages, three squaws, a big boy and a child drinking beer which they had fetched from Boortien's, that they drank this out together and the savages fetched from Boertjen's five pints of beer more, but he has not seen that the savages were intoxicated. He declares that he knows nothing more of the matter and is willing to confirm the above statement, if required, with his oath, and he has in token of its truth signed this with his hand." (Signed) JAN TIBOUT.

At the end of the meeting of the Council on January 10, 1657, all the members signed the minutes—among them Jan Tibout.

Of the seven sons of JAN TIBOUT, the following is known:

MARCUS, probably the oldest child, was born in Ghent, Flanders. He is mentioned several times by Riker and also in New York Historical Society Collections. He married, May 29, 1698, Aefie, widow of Jonas Lievenszen and daughter of Cornelis Jansen. He died, 1714, childless.

JOHANNES was a turner; freeman in New York in 1699, later an Alderman. His wife was Teuntie von Rommen. His will is dated April 20, 1727; not known to have left children. He witnessed a deed at Newtown, L. I., July 8, 1690, as shown in Vol. 2, Newtown Records.

In O'Callaghan's Colonial Documents, Vol. 4 (London Docs.), is: "Jon Tiebout—Ensigne in Capt. Evert Byvanck's Company, Col. Abra. De Peyster. The Regim't of Militia of y^e City and County of New York."

Date is not given, but documents preceding and following are dated 1700.

An interesting deed by Johannis Tiebout, merchant, and Teuntje, his wife, dated March 13, 1712, but not recorded until July 2, 1831, is in Liber 272-572 of Conveyances in New York.

They convey to Cornelius Post, of New York, innkeeper, for consideration of £120, "House in Broad Street, east side-corner lot and opposite to the City Hall of New York; bounded on the west by Broad Street, south and east by the property of Teunis Tiebout and north by Wall Street; being about seventeen feet ten and one-half inches on Broad Street and fifty-one feet on Wall Street."

Said lot was conveyed to Johannis Tiebout February 26, 1700. Teuntje signed mark (T).

This property forms a part of the plot now covered by the Drexel Building, and is perhaps the most valuable piece of property in America.

ANDRIES married Maria De Grave and settled in Hackensack, N. J. His children were, Johannes, Peter, Andries, Jacobus, Jacomine and Annetie. He died 1704 and his widow married Albert Terhune. The census of 1790 indicates that some of the descendants of Andries settled in Orange County and perhaps in Northern New York.

THEUNIS, born in New York in 1663, married Maryken, daughter of Hendrick Vandewater of Bergen, N. J., and died July 27, 1754. He was a carpenter and freeman in New York in 1698. He had eight children.

There does not appear to be any record of the sons DIRCK, HENRICUS and JACOBUS.

THEUNIS TIEBOUT

SECOND GENERATION.

Theunis Tiebout,² son of Jan Tibout² and his wife Sara Vander Vlucht, was a carpenter, contractor and builder and a man, evidently, of considerable political influence, as he had charge of the building of many of the public works. In 1712 he offered to "erect a horsemill in the city never before seen in these parts." There is no record of his proposition being accepted, but the Proceedings of the Common Council of New York show that his services were in frequent demand, and great confidence was reposed in his skill and judgment as a builder. In Volume III of these Proceedings, under date of July 30, 1717, it is shown that "Unto Theunis Tiebout and his son Hendrick were paid twenty-one pounds and fifteen shillings for construction of the cupola on the City Hall."

In 1719, "Ordered the Mayor to issue his cupit Warrant to the Treasurer to pay Mr. Teunis Tiebout, Carpenter, or Order, the sum of two pounds, Eighteen shillings and A penny, Curr't Money of New York, being for Carpentering work, Nails, Boards, etc. by him done and found, for Repairing the City Hall in July and November last as Appears by his Acct., which is Audited and allowed."

On May 24, 1720, "Ordered the Mayor Issues his Warrant to the Treasury to pay Mr. Teunis Tiebout or Order the sum of Seventeen pounds Eight Shillings and Eight pence, three farthings, Curr't Money in New York, it being for Materialls and Making of the Cage, Pillory, Whipping Post & Stocks in this City, and for Carpenters Work and Materialls in Repairing the Old ferry house on Nassau Island as appears by his Acct. which is Audited and Allowed."

On August 22, 1721, "Ordered to be paid to Teunis Tiebout Eight pounds, seventeen shillings and sixpense for workmanship and Materiall for Repairing about the Markett house at the Lower end of Wall Street."

December 8, 1722, "Ordered to be paid to Teunis Tiebout Carpenter, Sixty Nine pounds, Nineteen Shillings and Nine pence, half penny for Carpenters Work, Smith's Work, Mason's Work, Materialls, and Labourers and Other Work and service for Repairing the Gaols in the City Hall; also eight pounds, ten shillings and five pence for Materialls, Carpenter Work and Labourers, &c. For Repairing Crane and Common Sewer of this city."

Teunis Tiebout was elected Assessor of the North Ward September 29, 1724.

"Order for the sum of four pounds, Eleven Shillings and ten pence, half penny in full for Carpenters Work, Plank, Nails, Timber & Lock for the City Hall in the years 1724, 1725 & 1727."

October 11, 1730, "Ordered the Mayor to Issue his Warrant to the Treasurer to pay Mr. Teunis Tiebout, Carpenter, the sum of Sixty Six pounds, ten shillings and ten pence half penny, Curr't Money of New York, being for Carpenters work, Nails, Hinges and Other Materialls done and furnished for the City Hall, in finishing the Stare Case, the Arches in the Court Room and Making severall Rooms and Partitions in the Garrets & Other work done as Appears by his Acct. which is Audited and Allowed."

January 14, 1733, "Ordered paid Teunis Tiebout the sum of One pound ten shillings for making a Well in the Broad Street near the Watch House."

(Perhaps a portion of these records apply to Theunis Tiebout, Jr.)

Of the four sons of Theunis Tiebout.²

HENDRICK³—Married October 9, 1720, Elisabet, daughter of Garret and Sara Burger, and had children—Teunis, Sara, Marytje, Theunis and Elisabeth.

JOHANNES³—Married June 15, 1717, Marytje Van de Venter and had children—Maria, Cornelus, Theunis and Annatje.

THEUNIS³—Married July 19, 1729, Margretta Drinkwater and had children—Antje, Alburtus, Antje, Hendrick and Hendrick, and probably Sara.

ALBARTUS³—Married October 12, 1728, Cornelia Bogart and had children—Alburtus, Margrietje, Maria, Nicolaus, Johannes, Albartus, Cornelia, Cornelia and Elisabet.

COLLEGIATE CHURCH RECORDS.

In Liber 62-172 of Conveyances, New York, is a deed dated February 3, 1758—not recorded until June 17, 1802—"John Tiebout, Albartus Tiebout and Sara Ewouts, executors of the will of Tunis Tiebout, deceased, late of New York, carpenter, to Vincent Tillow, Jr., of New York—House and lot in the Dockward, east side of Broad St. bounded on the west by Broad Street, on the north by party wall of the house of David Van Gelder, on the south by house and ground of Tunis Tiebout and on the east by ground of widow Breested—being seventeen feet ten and one-half inches on Broad Street by fifty feet six inches or thereabouts," consideration £200.

Above described property is adjoining that on the corner of Wall and Broad Streets sold by Johannes Tiebout in 1712. Both plots were purchased February, 1700, from the heirs of the De Reimer estate and were part of a patent granted by Gov. Nicoll, May 15, 1668.

January 2, 1763—"Johannes Tiebout and Sara Ewetse surviving executors of the will of Teunis Tiebout, late of New York conveyed to Paulus Banta, Carpenter, of New York—lot in Montgomery Ward on the corner, being fifty-seven feet on Prince Street and one hundred and eighteen feet along the side."—Consideration £435.

LIB. 36, 414 N. Y.

Both of the above deeds refer to the will of Tunis Tiebout, dated November 8, 1753. This will apparently was not recorded. It is not in the records of the office of the Surrogate of New York, nor is it in any of the volumes of published wills.

Most of the Tiebouts in the line of Teunis Tiebout seem to have been connected in some way with carpentry and shipbuilding. In the Calendar of New York Documents, Vol. II, page 360, is the following: January 13, 1709, "Petition of Tunis Tibout and five others, New York carpenters, for their pay for labor on the fortification."

In the same volume, on page 577, is the following, relating to the military service of Alburdis, son of Teunis Tibout:

June 14, 1746. "Warrant Alburdis Tibout to raise men to serve in the expedition against Canada."

July 12, 1746. "Muster Roll. Capt. Alburdis Tibout's company of volunteers."

VANDEWATER

The Vandewater name is connected with the very earliest history of New Amsterdam. The family was numerous and prominent.

Jacobus, the first to come, arrived about 1658 and married Engeltie Jureaans; twelve children are of record. Many of the early books of account and records of the colony that are still preserved to us are in his handwriting. He was "Town Major" and attended to locking the gates of the fort at night.

Hendrick Vandewater came from Amsterdam some time later than Jacobus and married in America, April 22, 1662, Margaret Van der Meulen of Rotterdam.

He took the oath of Allegiance, 1664, and his name appears on a tax list of New York, 1676.

BERGEN.

The will of Margaret Vandewater of New York, widow, published by the New York Historical Society, divides her estate in six parts; one part is bequeathed to Maria, wife of Teunis Tiebout.

The will is dated April 9, 1724. Teunis Tiebout, Executor.

The Vandewater Arms is illustrated in Colonial Families of the United States.

Tunis Tiebout,⁴ house carpenter, is of record in New York Directories as living at 84 John Street.

The Will of Tunis Tiebout is recorded in Liber 53, folio 58, New York Surrogate's Records, and is dated May 10, 1794.

"In the Name of God, Amen. I, Tunis Tiebout, of the City of New York, House Carpenter, being of perfect helt of body and of a sound disposing mind and memory, for which pleased be God. “In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this tenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-four.”

TUNIS TIEBOUT.

“Signed and Sealed in presents of the Word Delamontaine wrote and Erazed.

Daniel Sackett. Elizabeth Sackett, Isaac Demilt.”

This will was proven February 9, 1816, before Silvanus Miller, Surrogate.

In the settlement of this will it was discovered that the personal property of Tunis Tiebout⁴ was not sufficient to pay his debts, and an order was issued by the Surrogate for the sale of his real estate, which consisted of a house and lot in John Street, No. 84.

This property was sold at the Tontine Coffee House on June 1, 1816, and was purchased by George Tiebout for $4,030.

George and Margaret, his wife, on the same day conveyed it to Henry.

NEW YORK RECORDS.

But one transfer of real property by Tunis Tiebout⁴ is of record.

April 11, 1746—Tunis Tiebout of New York, Carpenter, conveyed to Robert Benson of New York, Brewer, lot on Vandewater Street for £38-10. Tunis signed his mark (T. B.) No wife joined.

LIB. 37, 244 N. Y.

RIKER.

HENRY TIEBOUT,⁵ the eldest son of Tunis⁴ and Elizabeth Lamb, was born in New York City, March 18, 1756. He had not reached his majority at the breaking out of the Revolution but he joined the Regular Army, New York Line, some time before the first gun was fired in New York State.

At the close of the war he returned to New York and engaged in business with or worked for his father. His will shows that he was a shipwright, and as shown by his father's will he had entire charge of the latter's affairs and carried out the conditions as specified. His own will, dated January 5, 1827, probated September 6, 1831, makes no mention of wife or children.

Will of Henry Tiebout as found in New York Surrogate's Records, Liber 67, page 395, reads: "In the Name of God, Amen. I, Henry Tiebout, of the City, County and State of New York, shipwright, being of sound disposing mind and memory, for which blessed be God, do think it necessary to make a testamentary disposition of my estate in manner following. First, after the payment of my just debts and funeral charges, I give and bequeath to Henry Tiebout, George Tiebout, Charles Tiebout, and George Tiebout, the infant son of Cornelius Tiebout, deceased, one fourth of my real estate, to be divided equally among them share and share alike. To the heirs of my brother, John Tiebout, one fourth part, to my brother Cornelius one fourth part, and to Anna the wife of William Crolius one fourth part; and lastly I do hereby nominate and appoint William Vail, Charles Tiebout and Robert M. Gonan, executors of this my last Will and Testament, (and I hereby request them to dispose of the share of the infant son of Cornelius Tiebout in such a manner as they think conducive to his interest) hereby making void all former wills by me made.

"In Witness Whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the fifth day of January in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and twenty-seven.

"Signed, sealed delivered and disclosed to be my last will and testament of Henry Tiebout in the presence of John Moran, James Greig and George Gray."

Probated the sixth day of September 1831, before James Campbell, Surrogate.

The will of Martin Myer of New York, dated December 20, 1750, bequeaths all—subject to minor legacies—to his grandchildren, Elizabeth, Alexander, Jacob, Martin and Anne, children of his daughter, Hendrike, deceased, who was wife of George Lamb of New York, turner.

NEW YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY COLLECTION.

A deed reciting the will of Henry Tiebout and partition proceedings before Samuel Cowdry, a Master of Chancery, is recorded in Liber 345, 254 New York, and is dated March 26, 1835.

This deed refers especially to the house and lot No. 84 John Street and is made by Elizabeth Delamontagnie, widow of Joseph, of New York, Peter C. Tiebout, ship carpenter of New York, single man, John A. Tiebout of Wethersfield, Conn.,* blacksmith, and Martha his wife, and Margretta Tiebout, widow of George Tiebout, ship carpenter.

The recitation and finding is:

"Elizabeth, wife of Tunis Tiebout, was formerly Elizabeth Lamb. She was grandchild and devisee of Martin Myer, carpenter, of New York, and inherited from him one-fifth of the above mentioned property. This one-fifth is a part of her estate and belongs to her heirs at law.

* (John A. Tiebout was visiting at Wethersfield at the time mentioned, but his residence was at Essex, Conn.)

"Tunis Tiebout subsequently purchased from Alexander Lamb, Jacob Lamb, Martin Lamb and Ann Lamb their individual one-fifth shares, thus owning at the time of his decease four-fifths.

"The title of the four-fifths part owned by Tunis Tiebout was vested in Henry Tiebout by the will of Tunis and is divided according to the terms of his will in four shares.

"One portion is awarded to the children of George Tiebout, as specified in will.

NEW YORK DIRECTORY.

CORNELIUS TIEBOUT,⁵ son of Tunis Tiebout⁴ and Elizabeth Lamb, was born in New York City.

The Engineering News says, "Cornelius Tiebout was the first American-born engraver of note in this country.

He had made considerable progress in his art as early as 1790, and at that time was engraving for the New York Magazine and Brown's Family Bible, and was producing fairly good portraits in February, 1793. At an early age he exhibited a taste for drawing and began engraving on copper when apprenticed to a silversmith. He went to London about 1795 and is said to have studied engraving there under James Heath. He changed his style of work from line to stipple, and his portrait of John Jay, published in London in April, 1796, is noteworthy as being probably the first creditable engraving executed by an American-born engraver, who later practiced his art in this country.

In November, 1796, he was back in New York and there published his large plate of the sons of Benjamin West, after a painting by West. His name appears in the New York directories until 1799 when he apparently removed to Philadelphia, where he was publishing prints in 1801. He continued in business in the latter city until 1825 and made a fortune, which Mr. Thompson Westcott, in his History of Philadelphia, says was lost in some disastrous business venture. He then removed to Kentucky and died there in 1830."

NEW YORK DIRECTORIES.

Cornelius Tiebout married, April 20, 1799, Esther Young of New York, and their first child, Joseph Young, was baptized March 4, 1800. Joseph married Mary A. Brooke and had two children, Esther Young and Mary Brooke. He died prior to 1835.

The second child of Cornelius and Esther Tiebout was Henry, and their third child was Caroline, who became the wife of Simon W. Kellog. Both the latter children were probably born in Philadelphia.

"Cornelius Tiebout, engraver, born in New York in 1777, died in Kentucky about 1830. At an early age he exhibited a taste for drawing and while an apprentice with a silversmith made some attempts at engraving on copper. In 1794 he engraved several heads for William Dunlap's German Theater. The next year he went to London to receive instruction in the art from James Heath, being the first American to go abroad to study engraving, and returned at the end of two years very much improved.

"He chose Philadelphia for his residence and there he published his chief works. He worked in the stipple or chalk manner and was an artist of no mean merit.

"Among his folio plates are portraits of Washington, Gen. Horatio Gates, John Jay and Bishop White, after Gilbert Stuart, and Thomas Jefferson, after Rembrandt Peale.

"After accumulating some property Tiebout engaged in business ventures for which he was not fitted by experience or education and lost all. He then removed to Kentucky, where he died."

GEORGE TIEBOUT,⁵ son of Teunis Tiebout⁴ and Elizabeth Lamb, was born in New York City June 9, 1760. He followed the same or similar occupation to that of his father. The only record found of him is that of his service in the War of the Revolution, of which the following is the official record of the War Department at Washington:

"My father and his brother Henry were in the American Revolution eight years—Henry in the regular army and father in the militia. They suffered everything but death."

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER OF MR. CHARLES TIEBOUT (SON OF GEORGE AND NEPHEW OF HENRY) DATED FEB. 16, 1895.

Owing to the British occupation of New York and vicinity, George Tiebout, in common with all others from the southern part of New York State, was obliged to connect himself with one of the up-river regiments. In the records as preserved none of the lower counties have credit of a single regiment, although most of the New York State troops were of families living in New York City and on Long Island.

George Tiebout returned to New York after the close of the Revolution, and in 1793 lived at 257 Greenwich Street. He married Margaretta Calyer, also spelled Kalyer and Koljer, daughter of Peter Calyer, who was son of Jacobus Calyer and a descendant of some of Long Island's oldest families.

"At the 'Battle of Brooklyn' and in the retreat which followed, Bushwick was represented by a Militia Company under the command of Capt. John Titus. Also in a list of officers chosen by the different companies in Kings County, who had signed the declaration and taken their commissions we find among the Light Horse, Jacob Bloom, 2d Lieut.; Peter Wykoff, Quartermaster; Ab'm Van Ranst, 1st Lieut.; Peter Calyer, 2d Lieut., and John Stillman, Ensign."

STILES' KINGS COUNTY.

He was married to Susan Enyart, of Newark, N. J., September 21, 1826, at Rufus Enyart's, Hanover Township, Licking County, Ohio, by J. Buckle, preacher, and died October 18, 1846. Their children were Sarah Margaret, Henry Eckford, George, Maria, Daniel, Susan, Hannah Maria.

Sarah Margaret married Mr. Traviola and lives (1910) near Marshall, Ill. They had twelve children.

Henry Eckford had three daughters, Addra (married Mr. Criswell), Nellie S. (married Mr. Pfeffer), both living (1910) at Newark, Ohio, and Gertrude, who died 1872.

Hannah Maria married Mr. Waterman.

FAMILY RECORDS.

Sometime prior to 1835 Henry removed to the Territory of Michigan, and a deed is of record in New York conveying his interest in the house No. 84 John Street. He describes himself as son of George Tiebout, deceased, and a devisee of his uncle Henry, late of New York. This deed is executed in Green Bay, Michigan. Susan signed her mark.

CORNELIUS TIEBOUT.

The will of Cornelius Tiebout,⁶ blacksmith, bequeaths to his brothers Peter, Charles and John, to his wife Angeline and to his son George Henry.⁷ George Henry Tiebout,⁷ who never married, lived at Greenpoint. He enlisted in Company A, Fifth Regiment of New York Volunteers, Duryea Zouaves, on May 9, 1861. He was killed in action at Big Bethel, Va., on June 10, 1861.

“As our regiment was advancing . . . they opened their fire. . . . Among the killed was poor George Tiebout. He was shot through the heart by a cannister ball as he was advancing to the charge. The man who stood near him, and heard his death cry said ‘he died like a man and a soldier.’ . . . Poor George was the first martyr of our regiment, but we shall and will be avenged.”

Charles Tiebout⁶ in March, 1895, wrote to Ralph H. Tiebout:⁷

"My father, George, had seven sons, all dead but me. My wife died three years last January. Father died September 17, 1826. He was not well; fell downstairs in the night, feet up the stairs and head down at the foot, under his back. That caused his death in three days.

"Father told me how nigger Pomp saved his life and Uncle Henry's life once, and how a woman in Jersey saved his life and two others with him.

"I remember all about the War of 1812. Father volunteered six months."

The marriage of George Tiebout to Margretta Calyer introduces into the family lineage three of the most influential and prominent Huguenot families that were received in America, viz., Pia, Miserol and De Beauvois.

They are all mentioned in the Meserole genealogy and frequent notices of them appear in most Colonial histories of their localities.

PRAA

Peter Praa—or as the name was originally Peter Pia—was of French origin, exiled from his country, and found refuge in Leyden, Holland, whence he emigrated to America with his wife Catherine and their family. Although he is recorded to have had three sons, none of the name survived after the second generation.

PETER PRAA, JR., born in Leyden, was one of the most picturesque characters in Colonial history. He was owner of great tracts of land in Bushwick extending through Greenpoint and Hunter's Point, and was numbered among the large land owners of his period. He was always known as Capt. Praa, from his connection with the Bushwick Company of Col. Stephen Courtland's Regiment of Militia. In a "Road Book," now among the records of Kings County, is the account of the trial of Mistress Jonica Schampf and widow Rachel Luqueer for assaulting Capt. Praa—beating him and pulling his whiskers at a general training, October, 1690. The women admitted the assault and were fined, one three pounds, the other six shillings. The cause of the attack is not given in the record, but it is thought to have come about through Praa enlisting the husband and son of the women in the company of militia of which he was captain.

The "Capt. Peter Praa Association" was in existence in New York as late as 1850 and held meetings in Tammany Hall, now the New York Sun Building. The object of this association was to recover certain lands in Hunter's Point formerly owned by Peter Praa, Jr., said to have been illegally sold.

In a census of 1738 is Peter Praa and wife and nine slaves. Peter Praa, Jr., married Maria, daughter of Jacob Hay and Christina Cappaens, of New Amsterdam. Jacob Hay owned much property in Manhattan and Bushwick. His wife was also wealthy, and her will, dated June 17, 1687, with a codicil dated September 2, 1693, proven November 15, 1693, with its long inventory of costly belongings, is frequently alluded to by historians to show the luxury of Dutch living in New Amsterdam.

MESEROLE

Jean Miserol and his wife, Jennie Carten, with their son Jan, described on the ship list as a "sucking child," came on the ship "T' Bonte Koe" (The Spotted Cow), which sailed from Denmark, April, 1663, stopping at ports in Holland for passengers. Jean was a Huguenot from Picardy, in France, and in company with many others sought the new world to enjoy the freedom of his convictions. He settled in New Utrecht and later in Bushwick. His descendants are numerous.

Mr. Adrian Meserole, of Greenpoint, has compiled a most interesting and accurate genealogical chart of the Meserole family and its various alliances.

DEBEVOISE

Carel de Beauvois, a French Protestant, came from Leyden to New Amsterdam on the ship "Otter," February 17, 1659, accompanied by his wife Sophia Van Lodensteyn and their three children. He was a person of considerable literary attainments and by 1661 had become schoolmaster, reader and chorister in "Breucklyn," and later added to his other duties those of town clerk. His children were Jacobus, Gertrude, Catherine and Cornelia, the three oldest of whom were born in Leyden.

Jacobus, only son of Carel, married, January 12, 1678, Maria Carelsz of Brooklyn, and had sons—Carel, 1680; Joost, 1683; Jacobus, 1686, and Johannes, 1689.

Carel Debevoise, oldest son of Jacobus, married, 1705, Margaret Meserole and had four sons—Jan, Jacob, Carel and Johannes.

Carel, son of Carel Debevoise and Margretta Meserole, married, October 9, 1736, Eve, daughter of Coert Van Voorhies of Gravesend. They had eleven children, of whom Margaret, born May 9, 1738, and who married Peter Calyer, was the oldest.

JOHN ALEXANDER TIEBOUT

Youngest child of George Tiebout and Margretta Calyer Tiebout, had such education advantages as were obtainable in New York, his native city, at that time. In choosing his occupation he continued along the lines of his ancestors and learned the trade of shipsmith. After working in New York for a time he went to Essex, a small village on the Connecticut River, which for more than a hundred years had been noted as a place of shipbuilding and where the first privateer, the "Oliver Cromwell," was built for an infant navy at the beginning of the War of the Revolution. Mr. Tiebout entered the service of R. P. Williams, who was then engaged in building vessels for the well-known New York shipping firm of E. D. Hurlbut & Co.; he resided in Essex for several years and was for a time in Haddam, another shipbuilding town farther up and on the west side of the river. Later he returned to New York and finally located permanently at Greenpoint, L. I., where he continued until his death.

HAYFORD

Samuel Hayford died at Wethersfield, Conn., January 10, 1816, in his twenty-fifth year. He was son of Samuel Hayford, of Farmington, Conn., who married, in March, 1791, Thankful Adams (baptized February, 1770), daughter of Benjamin Adams (born December 1, 1735), who married, February, 1761, Patience, daughter of William and Thankful Nott.

Benjamin Adams was son of Amasa Adams, born 1708, married March 16, 1731-2, Hannah Camp, daughter of Joseph Camp of Hartford, and grandson of Benjamin Adams, who served under Capt. John Edwards in the Indian wars of 1675.

"There is reason to believe that Benjamin Adams was a son of William Adams of Farmington, Conn., who died July 18, 1655, leaving a widow, Elizabeth, a son, Benjamin, and a daughter, Elizabeth. This William Adams married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Hannah (Crow) Dickenson, whose ancestry is traced to Walter de Caen, a kinsman and companion of William the Conqueror, and through him to Rollo I of Normandy, France; also that this Walter wedded the daughter of the last Saxon Lord of Kenson and was afterwards known as Walter de Kenson, the founder of the Dickenson family."

STILES' WETHERSFIELD.

It is recorded that Peter Blinn was born 1640 and died at Wethersfield 1724.

Had Been Ailing for Several Months.
Was 77 Years Old.

Cornelius H. Tiebout died to-day shortly after noon at the Pilcher Hospital, where he was operated on by Dr. Pilcher for a serious ailment. Mr. Tiebout lived at 112 Prospect Park West. He was one of the prominent citizens of Brooklyn, having resided for many years in Greenpoint. He was engaged in the hardware business on Grand street for many years, having retired from active business several years ago. Since that time he had been active in financial institutions with which he was connected. He was a director in the North Side Bank and vice president of the Williamsburgh Savings Bank.

Last summer Mr. Tiebout went with a delegation from the Williamsburgh Savings Bank to Edinburgh, where he attended the centenary of the founding of savings banks. He was 77 years of age. For several months he has been ailing. He attended the last meeting of the trustees of the savings bank, and his recent illness has been brief.

Was Prominent in Church Work for Many Years.

He was very prominent in church work and was connected with the Kent Street Reformed Church for many years. He leaves a widow. He came to New York City when he was 10 years of age from Essex, Conn., where he was born. At the age of 14 he entered the employ of Francis B. and Thomas I. FUNERAL SERVICES FOR CORNELIUS H. TIEBOUT

Employes and Friends Gather to Honor the Memory of Merchant.

ADDRESS BY DR. FRANCIS.

Clergyman Pays Eloquent Tribute to Old Friend—Prayer Offered
by Dr. Boynton.

Impressive funeral services were held last night over the remains of Cornelius H. Tiebout, at his home, 112 Prospect Park West. The house was filled with the friends and former business associates of the dead merchant and financier, and many were unable to get in during the services, but remained until the end to obtain a last look at the face of their friend.

A special tribute was the presence of about sixty of his former employes, who, with bowed heads, passed the flower-covered casket after the services were concluded. Representatives of the North Side Bank and the Williamsburg Bank were present to render their tribute of affection and esteem and men from all walks of life and many women were among the mourners.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis Francis, the former pastor of the Kent Street Reformed Church, of which Mr. Tiebout had been a member for more than forty years, paid a touching tribute to the dead man, speaking with every evidence of deep feeling.

He said that it was Mr. Tiebout's personality that led him, thirty-eight years ago, to accept an invitation to preach in the Kent street Reformed Church, and later to accept the call extended. He said that from that day to the last he was a helpful adviser in the church work. He had been a member of the Consistory forty-three years, and at the time of his death was the oldest member of the church, in point of years.

"This was," the speaker said, "a record of which I know no parallel in the history of local churches. Though Mr. Tiebout had removed his residence from Greenpoint to the Park Slope some years ago, he never lost his interest in his old church home. For many years he was treasurer of the church, and its financial success was largely due to him.

"During his term of office a large church debt was paid, and many improvements were made. He was positive, but without bitterness. In this positiveness lies the secret of his success in business, for he was always able to give reasons for his belief and action. He was a faithful man in every way. He was long the superintendent of the Sunday school, and in addition was the superintendent of a mission school. He was liberal in his support of the church work, and never boasted of his benevolences.

"It was truly said of him: 'If there is one man who possessed love and friendship of the inhabitants of the Seventeenth Ward it was he. As a business man I may only say that his success was the result of industry, sagacity, honesty and business ability. He was sought for positions of trust and responsibility.'"

Dr. Francis gave several instances of Mr. Tiebout's strict honesty when to be dishonest would favor him, quoting him as saying: "Common honesty required the correction of mistakes either way." In closing Dr. Francis said: "A good man has gone from us. One honored by men and beloved by those who knew him most intimately. Such a life does not cease in its influence for good. Its memory remains to inspire and cheer us to faithful discharge of duty. We are grateful that he was spared so long, and we believe that He whom he loved and whom he served has received him to larger service in the Kingdom of His Father. May the peace of God which passeth all understanding be in the hearts of those who sorrow at Mr. Tiebout's departure, and may the comfort which He imparts be theirs."

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The casket was covered with a pall of American Beauty roses and lilies of the valley. The Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church offered prayer, which closed the services.

Mr. Tiebout is survived by his widow, three sons—Ralph H., Wallace and Cornelius H., Jr.—and a daughter, Mrs. Alice T. Gleason.

The remains will be interred in the family plot at Greenwood Cemetery. The honorary pallbearers are Paul Brown, Herbert F. Gunnison, Henry F. Woodman, John Euglis, George W. Ball, S. T. Thorne and George H. Conklin, who were his business associates and his friends.

RESOLUTIONS.

TIEBOUT—At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Williamsburgh Savings Bank, held May 19, 1911, the following minute was unanimously adopted:

With profound regret we record the death of our beloved friend and second vice president, Mr. CORNELIUS H. TIEBOUT, who departed this life May 18, 1911.

Mr. Tiebout had been associated with the growth and development of the Williamsburgh Savings Bank since his election to the Board of Trustees in September, 1888, serving as trustee, member of the Examining Committee, and at the time of his death, a member of the Funding Committee.

In whatever duties he was called upon to perform, his strict integrity, conscientiousness and courage were recognized and appreciated by his fellow trustees.

In extending our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved wife and family, we feel we have lost a personal friend and an earnest fellow trustee.

Resolved, That this minute be entered at large on our records and published in The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the Brooklyn Daily Times and the Standard Union; and that a copy thereof, suitably engrossed, be presented to the family of the deceased; and that this board attend the funeral in a body. f

DIED FEB. 1, 1882

CORNELIUS HENRY TIEBOUT,⁷ oldest child of John Alexander Tiebout⁶ and Martha Hayford Tiebout, was born in the Meadow Woods district of what was the borough, now the town of Essex, on the Connecticut River.

At the age of ten years he came to New York City with his parents and located at Greenpoint, Bushwick, L. I., where for about two years he attended the district school near the Reformed Dutch Church and afterward the first public school established in Greenpoint, at what is now the corner of Kent Street and Manhattan Avenue.

At the age of fourteen years he entered the employ of Francis V. and Thomas I. Morrell, hardware merchants, located on the southeast corner of what is now Kent Avenue, at North First Street; soon moved, however, to the northeast corner of the same avenue at Grand Street. He continued in their employ until Francis V. Morrell retired.

Thomas I. Morrell and Cornelius H. Tiebout then formed a partnership which lasted till January 1, 1878, when Mr. Morrell retired, Mr. Tiebout continuing alone until January 1, 1887.

He soon admitted his sons, Ralph H. and Wallace, to the firm, and retired January 1, 1889, they continuing as C. H. Tiebout & Sons, the business having developed into one of the largest truck builders' supply houses in the greater city.

In 1902 he became interested in the organization of the "Gleason-Tiebout Glass Company," becoming its Treasurer, his son-in-law, Marshall W. Gleason, being President, and C. H. Tiebout, Jr., Secretary. This company is recognized as one of the leading glass manufacturers of the country, devoting exclusive attention to lighting glassware. It owns and operates two factories, one at Greenpoint, the other at Maspeth.

He was one of the organizers of the New York Sugar Refining Company, the works being located at Long Island City, and continued its Vice-President until its absorption into the National Sugar Refining Company.

The North Side Bank of Brooklyn for a few months occupied, when first organized, a portion of his store at Grand Street and Kent Avenue. He was one of the organizers of this bank, and is still (1910) a Director.

In 1888 he was chosen a Trustee of the Williamsburgh Savings Bank, the largest financial institution in Brooklyn, and in 1908 became one of its Vice-Presidents.

His religious interest, naturally, because of Dutch ancestry, has centered in the Greenpoint Reformed Church. For many years he was a teacher and Superintendent in its Sunday School, Superintendent of the Eagle Street Mission, Deacon, and is still an Elder. For thirty-five years he was Treasurer of the Church, which position is now held by Ralph H. Tiebout, his son.

While still a resident of Greenpoint he was prominently identified with the Republican organization.

COTHER

Benjamin Cother was born at Wooten-under-Edge, England, on January 4, 1806, and died in Brooklyn, N. Y., September 14, 1891.

Eliza Bosworth was born at Warwick, England, about 1818, and died at Greenpoint 1874.

ROGERS

Thomas Rogers was born at Unionvale, Dutchess County, N. Y., January 23, 1806, and died there October 13, 1872. He married, June 18, 1831, Almira Herrick Titus, who was born in Washington, Dutchess County, N. Y., August 21, 1810, and died at Salt Point, in that county, January 17, 1891.

Miss Tiebout's Debut Dance DEC 20 Held at Her Home Last Night. 1915

What was in reality another debut came yesterday. Announced as a dance merely, it proved a debut dance, introducing, though informally, Miss Helen Tiebout. This St. Mark's avenue section girl therefore proved the second debutante of Christmas week. She was presented very prettily, in a gown of green chiffon, with a bodice of net and iridescent trimming. The dance was an attractive one, of about thirty-five couples, given at the Tiebout home, 680 St. Mark's avenue.

Christmas greens and red roses were the decorations. Miss Tiebout is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Tiebout. The guests of the night were:

She is a granddaughter of the late Cornelius H. Tiebout, founder of the hardware house of C. H. Lieutenant Whitecotton, who was graduated from the law college of Cornell University in June of last year, attended the second training camp at the Presidio of San Francisco, where he received his commission. He is now stationed at Camp Fremont, California.

T. G. TIEBOUT AN OFFICER

Todd Groesbeck Tiebout, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Tiebout, 680 St. Mark's ave., has just returned from the Central Officers Training School at Camp Lee, Va., having been commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry and immediately discharged. He expects to resume his studies at Williams College, where he is a junior. His brother, Capt. Frank Bosworth Tiebout, is in France in command of Co. H, 305th Inf.

EAGLE

The 77th Division is still making records. Its latest is shared with the Aquitania, which brought the first contingents of the division home yesterday from Brest, in 5 days 17 hours and 58 minutes, the fastest trip from Brest to New York made by a transport. With the 77th came Maj. Gen. Sir Henry Thornton, former general manager of the Long Island Railroad, who was knighted for his management of the British army railroads in France. Gen. Thornton returned to the United States to pay a visit to his mother.

Capt. Frank B. Tiebout, Intelligence officer and historian of the 305th Inf., whose home is at 880 St. Mark's ave., had some interesting records of the regiment. The regimental casualties were 2,600, which included 25 officers and 450 men killed in action. The regiment had 2,100 replacements. The regiment first saw service with the British in Flanders but in August, 1918, was assigned to the French sector near Toul, Chateau-Thierry, the Aisne, the Vesle, the Argonne and the Meuse are other places where the regiment made history.

"On the night of November 2 we went through the enemy's position and drove them back from 10 to 15 kilometers each day until November 6, when the regiment sustained heavy casualties on the Meuse," Capt. Tiebout said. "After that we had a five-day rest and then came the armistice."

Pvt. George W. Leonard, Co. L, 305th Inf., whose home is at 195 Nassau st., declared that a soldier's life was anything but "walking around between meals shooting Germans."

"The Jerries never thought we wanted any sleep," he said. "They moved back so fast that our boys had to keep hiking day and night to catch up to them. For four days and nights we only had bread and water to keep up our strength, because the kitchens could not keep up with us. Directly they caught up with us, the order would come to do another hike and leave the grub behind us. Then the bunch would fall into line, walking through the forest like the Chinese go on Mott st. I got so darned tired of the walking without sleep I almost hoped something might hit me, so that I would get sent back to a hospital to get some sleep for a day."

STORY OF THE 305TH
EAGLE ———— OCT 25 1918
Captain Tiebout's Fine History and Pictures.

The 305th Infantry can be proud of "A History of the 305th Infantry." It is a volume of interest to any reader, who may lay his hands on it. Strangely, in view of the many extremely intimate records of outfits that have been published, this book is not one of interest only to those boys whose names have been included.

Capt. Frank B. Tiebout wrote, or rather compiled it, and the publishers are the 305th Infantry Auxiliary. Capt. Tiebout was regimental historian and he was a thorough one. When orders came to begin a history of the regiment, he sent out his details for photographs. He sent them back to the scenes of the 305th's engagements and he gathered in a thousand or more good photographs.

He sent out word to his regiment for the men to write anecdotes and incidents that were of interest to their particular companies or squads. The regiment responded and then he had the opportunity of choosing stories of interest from among thousands contributed.

The history is printed on rich, heavy paper and is a mine of good soldier stories and pictures. The pictures are clear, the stories well told. A 305th man could get no more pleasure out of reading this book than anybody else. It is a soldiers' book, not a regiment's book. Capt. Tiebout is entitled to a low bow and the 305th Infantry, to congratulations on having him compile the history.

Miss Gleason's and Mr. Bailey's Engagement. EAGLE Nov 5 1916
 Not many Brooklyn girls have been so much of a figure in the "society" world as Miss Shirley Gleason of 864 Park place, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall W. Gleason. She is to marry a man equally prominent in society, Lloyd Bailey, who lives at 1141 Eighty-fifth street and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Bailey.

Marshall Gleason Engaged To Miss Edith Patterson.

A card party of Saturday, at the home of Miss Shirley Gleason, 854 Park place, at which more than a score of representative girls and young matrons were present, announced, much to the delight of every one, the engagement of the hostess' brother, Marshall T. Gleason, and one of her best friends, Miss Edith Patterson.

Cakes at the supper of this card party, late in the afternoon, told the story of this engagement in a very attractive way. In each cake, unsuspected by all but the new fiancée and her hostess, was a china ring, in all, that is, except Miss Patterson's cake, which contained her engagement ring. The rings everyone else got were "gold china" rings with gilt doves upon them, very "bridey" and ornate. On each was a tag bearing the monograms of Miss Patterson and Mr. Gleason. As soon as the first rings commenced to come to light it was realized that Miss Patterson was the guilty girl.

This bride-to-be is a daughter of Robert Patterson of 718 St. Mark's avenue. She has taken an active part in society and is a very attractive girl of her day. Mr. Gleason is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall W. Gleason. Like his bride-to-be he comes of well-known Brooklyn people.

Auction bridge was played at this announcement card party. The first prize, a gilded scrap basket, was won by Miss Juliet Holmes Griffiths. The other prize winners were, in their order: Second prize, Mrs. Edwin M. Keiser, jr. (Miss Louise Scholes that was), a silver vase; third prize, Miss Virginia Crosby, a French gilt picture frame; fourth prize, Miss Grace Meacham, a velvet flower; fifth prize, Mrs. Lionel Herrmann (Miss Edna Du Bois that was), silk stockings.

Others at this party were Miss Hazel Messinger, Mrs. Robert Lincoln Gray (the former Miss Martha Gomer), Mrs. Arthur Lethbridge (the bride, Miss Valerie Tomes that was), Miss Wil-mott Crosby, Miss Mildred Hunter, Miss Marguarite Bacon, Miss Anna Taylor, Mrs. Harry Balfe, Miss Beatrix Maider, Miss Edythe Howlett, Mrs. Lee Dilworth, Miss Rita Pomeroy, Miss Irene Du Bois, Miss Edna Hodgman, Miss Helen Dougherty, Miss Edna McCabe, Miss Grace Hatfield, Mrs. George Baker.

Miss Shirley Gleason Weds EAGLE
Joseph Lloyd Bailey. Dec 10 1916

The Clinton Avenue Congregational Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding last night when Miss Shirley Gleason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Wilfred Gleason, of 864 Park Place, was married to Joseph Lloyd Bailey. The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, officiated. Miss Gleason made a lovely bride in her gown of silver brocade trimmed with white chiffon and pearls. Her tulle veil had a bandeau of rose point, pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lavender orchids and white sweet peas. The matron of honor, Mrs. Marshall Tiebout Gleason, wore flame color chiffon with a sash and train of flame color velvet, and the maid of honor, Miss Helen Dougherty, was in flame color velvet with a train of flame color marine. Both carried large peach-colored feather fans with small shower bouquets of Ophelia roses attached to them. Theodore Harbour Bailey Jr. was his brother's best man and the ushers were the bride's two brothers, Marshall Tiebout Gleason and Charles Wilfred Gleason; Edwin T. Gibson of Bronxville, N. Y., Howard Starkey Scholes of Providence, R. I., who formerly resided in Flatbush; Raymond Fryor Ackerman, George Franklin Fisher, Edwin Martin Keiser Jr. and Sidney Bayley Silleck. A reception at the Hotel Bowersett followed the ceremony. Mrs. Gleason wore gold brocade trimmed with green and Mrs. Bailey, the bridegroom's mother, was in black satin ornamented with silver and jet. Both had bouquets of purple orchids. Mr. Bailey, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Harbour Bailey, of 1147 85th street, Bay Ridge, served two years overseas with the Navy during the war.

APPENDIX

HISTORICAL NOTE.

THE KENT STREET REFORMED CHURCH.

The first Sabbath School held at Greenpoint met for a time at the house of Charles Tiebout, later of Los Angeles, Cal., located on Franklin Street on the west side near Java Street. This Sabbath School was the nucleus of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of Greenpoint, both of which organizations met after in a room over a grocery store kept by David Swalm, on the west side of Franklin Street, between Huron and India Streets.

The Church was organized in May, 1848. The first church building was erected on Java Street near Franklin and was dedicated October 13, 1850. As the congregation increased another building became necessary, and in June, 1867, the corner-stone of the present Kent Street Church was laid. This building was completed and dedicated January 30, 1870. On October 11, 1879, the corner-stone of a new Sunday School was laid, and on May 30, 1880, it was dedicated.

A Mission was organized in 1881 and later the Church erected for it a building on Eagle Street, near Manhattan Avenue. This was dedicated in 1891.

It is of interest to note that Cornelius Henry Tiebout attended this first Sunday School and is in 1910 still officially connected with the Church.

APPENDIX
GREENPOINT.

ITS EARLY HISTORY AND ITS FIRST INHABITANTS.
AN INTERESTING MEMORIAL DOCUMENT—TRACING THE GENEALOGIES OF THE LEADING FAMILIES.

GREENPOINT, October 11, 1879.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Daily Times:

DEAR SIR: The following brief sketch of the History of Greenpoint, including the genealogy of what may be called its original families, had been hastily collated at the request of members of the Consistory of the Reformed Church, as a contribution to the contents of the corner-stone of their new Sabbath School building in Kent Street.

Anything like a complete history of the village would fill a volume, and the following outline is necessarily more remarkable for what it omits than for what it contains. What there is of it is derived from ancient records and other trustworthy sources, and is believed to be substantially correct and truthful.

TIMOTHY PERRY.

THE HISTORY.

Green Point, properly so called, consists of the peninsular upland bounded by the East River, Newtown Creek and Bushwick Creek, hemmed in on either side by salt marshes, and connected by a narrow strip of upland with the rest of the old town of Bushwick, of which, up to consolidation with the City of Brooklyn, January 1, 1855, Greenpoint formed a part. The name of Green Point is of ancient origin. It appears in the old Dutch records of the Town of Bushwick as early as March 14, 1661, where it is recorded that the inhabitants petitioned the "Director General" (Governor Peter Stuyvesant) that they might have a road "upon Dirck Volkertsen (the) Norman's land, which is named Green Point, for the purpose of going to the River and Kills." The road is supposed to be identical with the lane afterwards in use which passed down just south of where the present Tabernacle M. E. Church stands, and so on between Noble and Calyer Streets along the head of Oak Street, coming out in an oblique direction along the edge of the meadows near the corner of Calyer and Franklin Streets. Fifteen years ago its walls were in part standing. The above-named Dirck Volkertsen (in old documents frequently called Dirck the Norman), was the first settler of Greenpoint of whom we have positive record. He lived in a stone house near the East River at the mouth of Norman's Kill (now Bushwick Creek), which appears to have been named after him.

This house stood near the corner of the present Calyer and West Streets, and was the first house known to have been erected on Green Point.

Volkertsen's original grant was a "ground brief," dated April 3, 1645, under which he appears to have taken possession of nearly the whole peninsula lying on the East River between Mespit Kill (Newtown Creek) and Norman's Kill (Bushwick Creek).

In 1653 he conveyed the northerly portion of Green Point to one Jacob Hay (or Hays), who died soon after, leaving his widow, Christina Cappaens, and one child, Maria Hays. Christina Cappaens subsequently married David Jachems, who in 1670 obtained from Governor Lovelace a confirmatory patent of the land which Jacob Hays had purchased from Dirck the Norman. Maria Hays' first husband was Jost Adriaence Molenaer (or Miller), after whose death she married Peter Praa, a native of Leyden, who had come to this country in his childhood with his parents in 1655. Although born in Holland his father was a Huguenot from France, who had taken refuge in Leyden from religious persecution to which the French Protestants at that time were subjected. Peter Praa was a man of great enterprise and public spirit, commander of the Bushwick militia, and otherwise prominent in the councils of the town. He and his wife, Maria Hays, by the will of her mother, Christina Cappaens, and by purchase from the sons of Dirck Volkertsen, appear to have acquired the title to nearly all the land on Green Point, and their lineal descendants continued to be the principal, if not the sole occupants, of the territory for nearly one hundred years thereafter. Peter Praa and his wife had no sons, so that the name of Praa became extinct; but their four daughters, viz., Elizabeth, who married Jan Meserole; Maria, who married Wynant Van Zandt; Christina, who married David Provoost, and Annetti, who married William Bennett, were the ancestors of the wide-spread families of the respective names, which are still so well known in Brooklyn, New York and vicinity.

Indeed, at the time of the Revolutionary War there were but five families living on Green Point, all of them the lineal descendants of Peter Praa. The heads of these families were as follows:

1. Abraham Meserole (son of Jan Meserole) and grandson of Peter Praa, who lived on the banks of the East River, between what are now India and Java Streets. The house in which he lived was still standing up to a few years ago, and was occupied by Neziah Bliss, whose wife was a granddaughter of the above-named Abraham Meserole. It has now passed away, with nearly all the other old relics of Greenpoint, to give place to the necessities and repacities of modern improvements.

2. Jacob Meserole (another son of Jan Meserole and grandson of Peter Praa), who lived in the southerly part of Greenpoint, near Bushwick Creek Meadows (between the present Manhattan Avenue and Lorimer Street, near Norman Avenue), not far from the present residence of his grandson, Adrian Meserole. His farm embraced the whole of the southerly portion of Greenpoint.

3. Jacob Bennett (son of William Bennett, whose wife Annetti was a daughter of Peter Praa), who lived in a house in the northerly portion of Greenpoint near the present Clay Street, midway between Franklin Street and Manhattan Avenue. His farm was afterward known as the "Griffin Farm," owned by the trustees of Union College.

4. Jonathan Proovost (son of David Proovost, whose wife Christina was a daughter of Peter Praa), who lived on the east side of Greenpoint, at the edge of the meadows in a stone house (formerly the residence of Peter Praa himself), standing near the northeast corner of what are now Oakland and Freeman Streets, on premises lately occupied by James W. Valentine, whose wife is a great-granddaughter of the above-named Jonathan Provoost. The old Provost burying-ground, which was located near the northeast corner of India and Oakland Streets, has been removed within a few years and not a trace of it now remains.

5. Jacobus Calyer (whose wife Janitie was a daughter of Jan Meserole, and granddaughter of Peter Praa), who occupied the house referred to near the mouth of Bushwick Creek, built by Dirck Volckertsen the Norman. This Jacobus Calyer was great-great-grandfather of Cornelius H. Tiebout, the oldest lineal descendant of Jacobus Calyer, now living in Greenpoint.

These five families at the time of the Revolutionary War constituted the whole of the Green Point settlement, and pursued their quiet lives cultivating the fertile fields which had descended to them from their ancestors. Each farmer had his boat with which from time to time he conveyed his surplus vegetables to the New York market, and it must be remembered that in those days they were much further from New York City than we are now, even traveling by water, for the built-up portion of that city then lay below the present New York City Hall.

The only road leading from Green Point was the narrow lane running across the neck (intersecting the present Van Cott Avenue near Humboldt Street), and thence out to Bushwick and around to the East River. There was no bridge over Bushwick Creek, and none over Newtown Creek, so that at that time Green Point was practically as far from New York as Yonkers is now, and must have been from its secluded and detached position "one of the quietest places in the whole world." Although the English had conquered New Netherlands in 1664, more than one hundred years previous, the universal language of Green Point still remained the Dutch and it continued in use by the older inhabitants, even up to the memory of those now living.

During the greater part of the Revolutionary War this portion of Long Island was in the possession of the English, and loyalty (either real or quasi) to the King of England was the only attitude of safety for the inhabitants. It seems, however, that Abraham Meserole's son John A. (father of Archibald K. Meserole) was either a rebel or strongly suspected to be such and was at one time taken prisoner by the British and confined in a New York jail. And according to tradition all of the inhabitants suffered severely from the depredations of the British soldiers and from involuntary contributions to lawless marauders who were hangers-on to the British army during the entire war.

After the Revolutionary War and during more than one-third of the present century, Green Point maintained its well-established character of a secluded nook, made up exclusively of farms and gardens, having little or no intercourse with the outside world except by way of row or sail boats to New York City, and on Sundays out across the "neck" in wagons or on horseback to Bushwick Church.

The first real move towards modern improvement was the building of the Ravenswood, Greenpoint and Hallet's Cove turnpike, along the line of the present Franklin Street, with its bridges over Bushwick Creek and Newtown Creek, and serving to connect for the first time Greenpoint with the rest of the world. It was opened in 1839 and was built mainly through the enterprise of Captain Neziah Bliss, father of Hon. A. M. Bliss, who did more for the early development of Greenpoint than any other one citizen of the place.

From this date (1839) commences the settlement of Greenpoint as a village, slowly at first, but afterwards with more rapidity, until in 1850 the population numbered about two thousand souls. A public school house in 1846 had been erected. Methodist, Baptist and Dutch Reformed Churches had been organized, a shipyard had been established by Eckford Webb (afterward Webb & Bell), the first beginning of an industry which, between 1850 and 1860, became the chief feature of Greenpoint, ten to twelve shipyards having been at one time in active operation. The Greenpoint Ferry at the foot of L Street (now Greenpoint Avenue) commenced running in 1854 and the Brooklyn City Horse Railroad Company extended their tracks into Greenpoint in 1856.

But it was not intended in this brief narrative to enter into the more modern history of Greenpoint. It has now become a thickly settled portion of the City of Brooklyn. Not satisfied with the improvement of the natural upland, a considerable fraction of the adjacent meadows has been filled in and is being built upon, and the population of the Seventeenth Ward (which comprises, however, somewhat more territory than was included in Greenpoint proper) is now nearly if not quite thirty thousand.

Its savings bank, its bank of discount (The Mechanics and Traders); its extensive porcelain factories, its glass factory, its foundries and machine shops and numerous other manufactories of every description; its lines of handsome shops and stores; its comfortable and even elegant residences; its two fire companies; its police station, manned with an efficient police force; its fifteen miles of paved streets; its four handsome and commodious public school buildings, where over three thousand six hundred children are daily taught; its twelve or more churches of various denominations filled on Sunday with devout congregations, its equal number of prosperous Sunday Schools, all go to show that the old farms and gardens have at last succumbed, and been compelled to give place to the modern city with all its busy life. When the stone which covers this brief sketch shall in coming years be removed, may it be true that Greenpoint shall then still be a place of prosperity and good repute, and its inhabitants then be able to point with pride to the fact that its advance since 1879 in all its material, educational, moral and religious interests, shall have been in even greater ratio than its previous rapid growth.

To the original manuscript it annexed a diagram showing the genealogy (in part) of the old Green Point families, also showing their descendants who at present reside in Greenpoint and who with propriety as the descendants of the old Dutch settlers, are now—with but one or two exceptions—members of the Protestant Reformed Dutch Church (now the Reformed Church of Greenpoint).

Jacobus Calyer, above mentioned, had three sons, viz:—Charles, Jacobus and Peter; also four daughters, viz:—Eve, Margaretta, Jane and Catherine. Margaretta married George Tiebout, and had seven sons, of whom John was the youngest and father of Cornelius H. Tiebout, mentioned in the above as a lineal descendant of Peter Praa.
