

His son, Thomas Crocker, died without issue.

His son, William, Crocker, built the house in which I was born. It was a two-story house with brick gable ends and dormer windows, two rooms below and two above, with an addition containing two rooms and a hall. High up in one end of the building were two bricks, one above the other, with "William Crocker" cut in one, and "1756" in the other. A few years ago the house was burned down. My brother, J. O. Thomas, secured for me these two bricks from the ruins, and I now have them. He married ——— Milner, and surviving his wife, he died in 1791. His estate was appraised by John Thomas, William Blunt and Andrew Woodley, at £500.17. He left surviving him the following children: Joseph, William, Milner, John, Molly, Sarah and Henry. Of these I only remember Henry. He died unmarried. Molly died unmarried, but left a will dated the 2d of November, 1792, probated July 1, 1793. In it she mentions her brothers, William, Joseph, Milner, Henry and her sister, Sally. Joseph Crocker died unmarried, but testate. His will was dated March 26, 1803, probated April 5, 1803. He mentions his brother, William Crocker, and his brother William Crocker's son, John. Sarah Crocker married Tristram Godwin and died without issue.

John Crocker removed to Southampton County and there married Miss ——— Pope. He died leaving his wife and issue surviving him, who after his death moved to Northampton County, N. C. In 1860, I met at the Macon House, Portsmouth, one of his descendants, a son, Milner Crocker. Some years ago I opened up a correspondence with this branch of the family.
