"Beating the shell to the tape"—French soldiers won this race at Gallipoli. The pursuing Turkish shrapnel burst just behind them, as shown in the photograph.

Medem Photo Service.

The great pier at the entrance to the Suez Canal at Port Said, ending with the De Lesseps Monument.

Press Illustrating Co.

Port Said and the harbor—the Achilles Heel of Great Britain's Far East commerce.

Press Illustrating Co

Views of the Suez Canal, the Key to Egypt, at Which Germany's Next Blow at Britain May Be Aimed

The entrance to the Suez Canal and the waterfront at Port Said.

Press Illustrating Co.

The entrance to Alexandria, once captured by Napoleon, and the historic fort of Aboukir. This is one of Germany's objectives.

Press Illustrating Co.