

Officers of the United Boys' Brigade at Camp Wagg, Malverne, L. I.—Front row, left to right: Commandant C. D. Lathrop, Co. E, Signal Corps, Lynbrook, L. I.; Capt. R. Lloyd, Co. A, Signal Corps, Brooklyn; Maj. W. C. Dangler, Signal Corps, General Staff; Col. T. C. Halbert, commanding New York State Signal Corps; Lieut. Dietsch, Co. C, Second Inf., Brooklyn; Maj. P. E. Everdell, Battery D, Field Artillery, Brooklyn; Second row: Lieut. D. Schroeder, Battery D, Field Artillery, Brooklyn; Capt. G. Dunham, Commissary, Signal Corps; Commandant G. Babcock, Co. F, Signal Corps, Lynbrook—Malverne; Commandant O. Trainor, Co. K, Signal Corps, Valley Stream, L. I.; Lieut. F. Vandewater, Co. F, Signal Corps, Lynbrook—Malverne; Capt. E. Schmidt, Co. F, Signal Corps, Lynbrook—Malverne; Capt. G. Russell, Co. H, Signal Corps, Roosevelt, L. I.; Lieut. C. Chancy, Co. B, Signal Corps, Lynbrook, L. I.

Scenes in Camp Wagg, Malverne, L. I. Some of the New York Militant Organization, the United Mounted scouts and dispatch bearers of Co. B, Signal Corps, Grace Reformed Church, Brooklyn, Maj. W. C. Dangler and Capt. R. Lloyd, commanding.

Sergeants Vandewater and Leys, Co. E, Signal Corps, Lynbrook.

Company A, Signal Corps, Grace Reformed Church, Brooklyn, in extended order drill at Camp Wagg, Malverne, L. I.

Battery D, Field Artillery, United Boys' Brigade, St. Bartholomew's Church, Brooklyn, going into action at Camp Wagg, Malverne, L. I., under command of Major F. E. Everdell.

General view of the camp of the United Boys' Brigade, named Camp Wagg in honor of the Poo Bah of Malverne, Alfred H. Wagg.

Company A, Signal Corps, Grace Reformed Church, Brooklyn, in semaphore signal drill. The company is equipped with a complete United States Army field service outfit.