S.W. Bullecourt

REMARKABLE PHOTOGRAPH OF A SECTION OF THE FAMOUS "HINDENBURG LINE," NEAR BULLECOURT,
Showing the First, Second, and Third Line Trenches, the System of Communication from One to the Other, and, in the Left Foreground, Immediately in Front of the First-Line Trenches, Acres of Wire Entanglements. In the Background Also, Before the Second-Line Trenches, May Be Seen a Second System of Wire Entanglements. This Photograph, So Far as Known the First to be Received in This Country, Giving a Comprehensive View of the German Main Defenses Which Extended from Lens, on the North, to La Fère, on the South, Was Taken from a British Military Plane, and Is Released by the British Air Mission Through the Committee on Public Information.

ACRES OF CAMOUFLAGED GERMAN FIELD PIECES CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH DURING THE GREAT ADVANCE.
According to Dispatches, the Loss of Enormous Quantities of Such Guns Partly Explains the Present German Flight.
(International Film Service.)

BRITISH TOMMY PREPARING HIS DINNER ASTRIDE A RECENTLY CAPTURED GERMAN TRENCH.
(International Film Service.)

KING GEORGE V.,
On His Recent Visit to France, Inspecting a British Camp of Niesen Huts Which Will House England's Fighting Men During the Coming Fifth Winter of the War Unless Peace Is Declared.
(Underwood & Underwood.)

MISS GERTRUDE FOLKS,
Daughter of Homer Folks of New York, and a Worker for the American Committee for Devastated France, Reading the News to a Peasant Grandmother and Grandchild.
(Harry B. Lachman.)

SOLDIERS OF COMPANY F, 101ST INFANTRY, TWENTY-SIXTH OR NEW ENGLAND DIVISION, APPARENTLY FIND A REAL HOME WITH THIS FRENCH FAMILY WITH WHOM THEY ARE BILLETED.
(© Committee on Public Information.)

FRENCH GIRL HOSPITAL AND CANTEEN WORKERS KEEPING FIT BY DAILY FENCING EXERCISES.