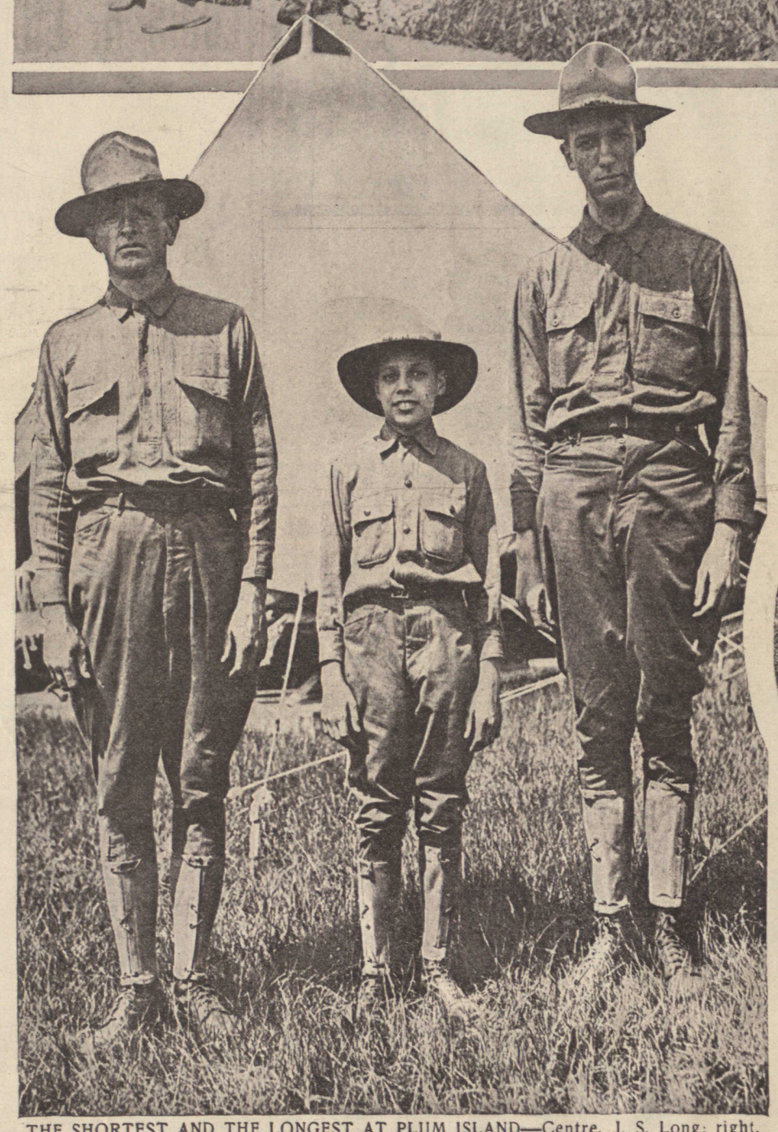
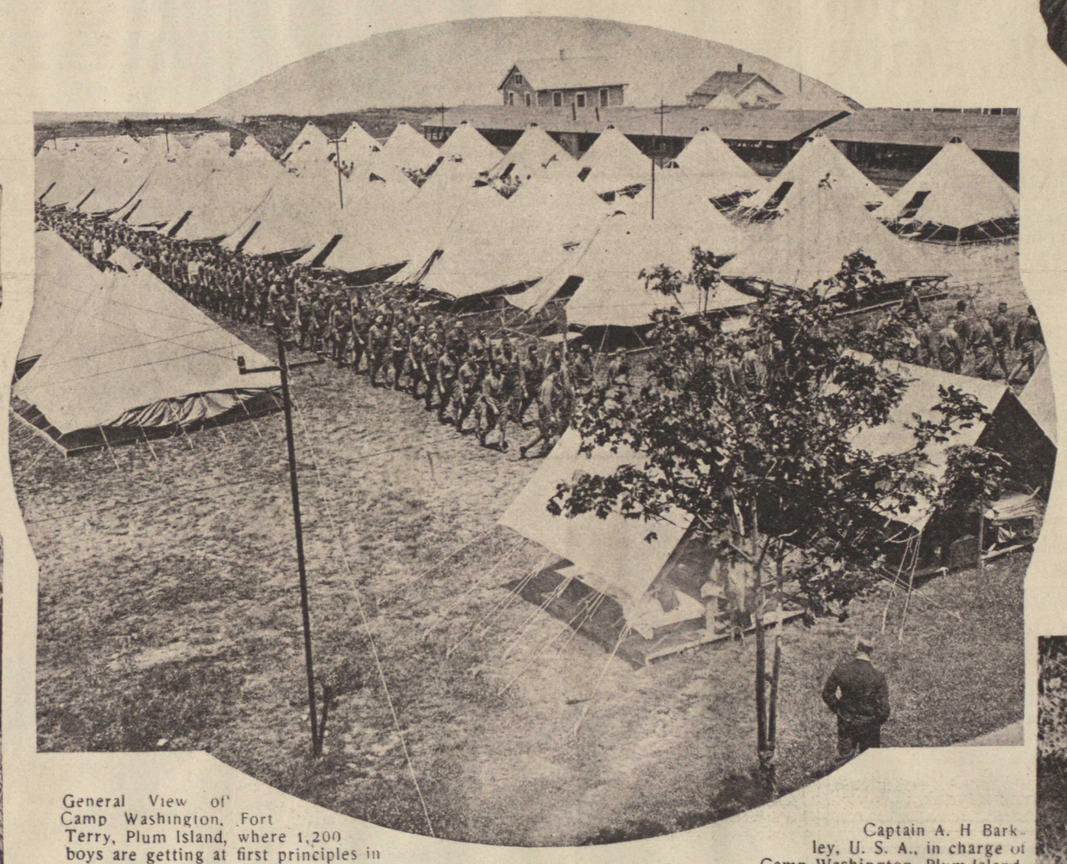
JUNIOR PLATTSBURGHERS—1,200 boys have gathered at Fort Terry, on Plum Island, near New London, Conn., for a course of military training under regular army officers and graduates of Plattsburgh. ©Underwood & Underwood.

THE REAL UNCLE SAM, JR., IS HAVING HIS DAY AT FORT TERRY AND FORT HAMILTON



THE SHORTEST AND THE LONGEST AT PLUM ISLAND—Centre, J. S. Long; right, G. F. Anger. At the left is one of the instructors, a regular, First Sergeant J. W. Barrett.
©Underwood & Underwood.



General View of Camp Washington, Fort Terry, Plum Island, where 1,200 boys are getting at first principles in preparedness.
©Underwood & Underwood.

Captain A. H Barkley, U. S. A., in charge of Camp Washington, Plum Island. The boys in camp are from 15 to 17 years of age. 150 boys form a company.
©Underwood & Underwood.

Four hundred New York school boys went into camp for military instruction at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, during the week of July 2. Here's a part of Fort Hamilton's 400.
Photo by Central News Service.

OFF FOR CAMP WASHINGTON—Most of the 1,200 boys taking military instruction at Fort Terry are high school pupils, although many private schools are represented.