

St. Dunstan's Hostel for blinded British troops brings pleasure to the brave war victims through cycle rides and boat races on the Thames. Official Photos from Pict. & Amer. Press.

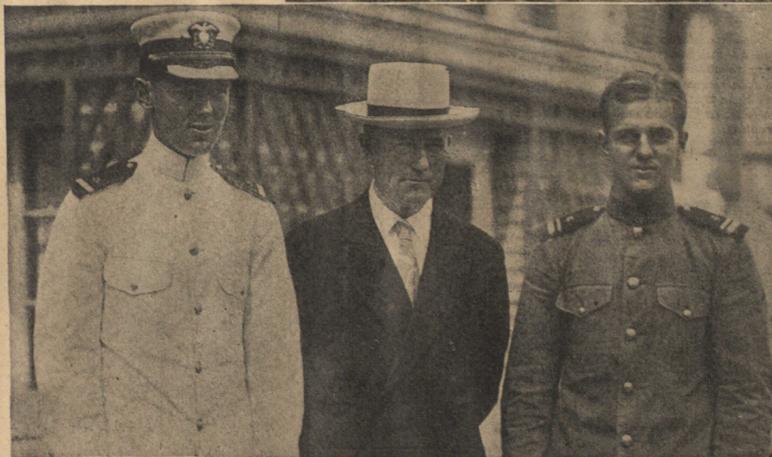

Walter Camp, famous Yale athlete and coach, on the right, is directing the physical training of a score of prominent government officials in Washington. Part of the classes pictured below. Beginning with the second man in each row from left to right are: Front row—W. B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor; J. E. Davies, Federal Trade Commissioner; L. F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor; O. T. Crosby, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; T. W. Gregory, Attorney General; D. C. Roper, of the Tariff Commission. Second row—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Edwin F. Sweet, Assistant Secretary of Commerce; Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior. © Harris & Ewing, from Paul Thompson.

Ernest Estoppey taking a "short" swim across the Hudson after crossing the continent from Coronado, Cal., to New York on a bicycle. He spent six months and four days on the road. © Underwood & Underwood.

Dr. Georg Michaelis, Prussian statesman, who succeeds Bethmann-Hollweg as Chancellor of the German Empire. This picture, declared good likeness by former Ambassador Gerard, differs greatly from those published by the newspapers early last week. © Press Ill. Serv.

Henry P. Davison, head of the American Red Cross, and his two sons, now in the service, H. P. Davison, jr., and Frederick Davison, at the Red Cross Benefit at Mr. Davison's home, at Peacock Point, Long Island. © Underwood & Underwood.

Soldiers of the 22nd U. S. Regular Infantry experimenting with a new telescopic sight for long range work at Sea Girt, N. J.

Prominent society women "looking up" at aviators flying for a Red Cross benefit at the summer home of Henry P. Davison at Peacock Point, Long Island. Those pictured are, reading down from left to right, Mrs. James Brown, Miss Katherine von Ingen, Miss Adele Brown, Mrs. W. W. Warren, Miss Flora Whitney and Mrs. James Allen Townsend. Underwood & Underwood and Amer. Press.