

LONDON TURNS OUT

On May 11 the American troops passing through London were given a royal welcome. Below they are shown being reviewed by King George and General Biddle. At the left, the American band is passing through Whitehall, before the famous Life Guards.

Photographs © Central News and Underwood & Underwood.

This picture of Raoul Lufbery, snapped last month at the American flying field in France, is probably the last one taken of him before his final fight, on May 19.

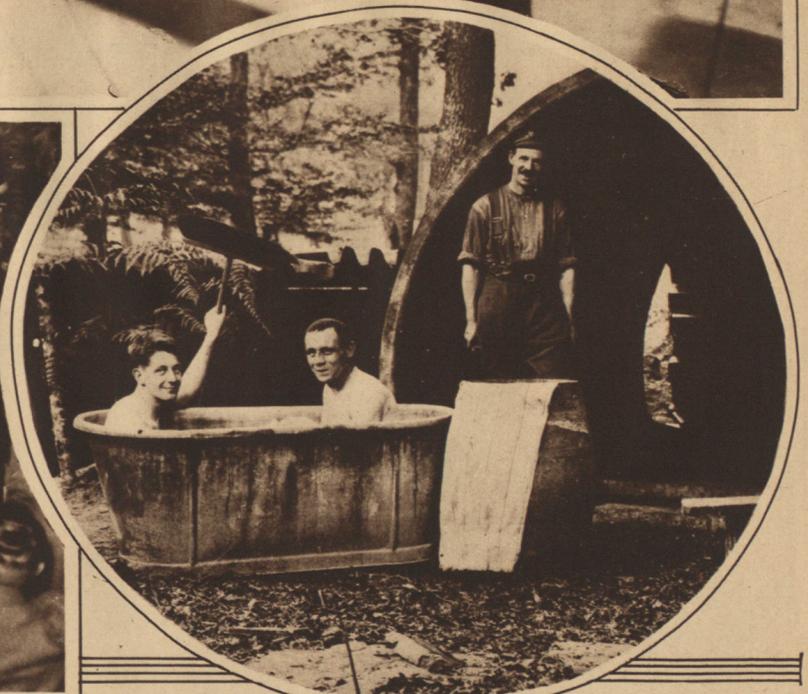

How an aviation field looks to an aviator. Below, through the struts of the 'plane, are seen the long rows of hangars and munition dumps.
Photograph © Kadel & Herbert.

Three hundred foreign-born members of the National Army at Camp Upton were admitted last week to full citizenship in the country for which they are to fight. They are shown here taking their oath of allegiance.

Photograph © International Film Service.

It takes more than the German army to keep a British soldier out of his tub.
Photograph from International Film.