

Good to be back again? Oh, boy! It may seem like a lot of attention showered upon one solitary bluejacket, but he's just back from six months' service in the North Sea.

© Underwood & Underwood.

The Carnaval de Victoire at the Ritz was a brilliant success. This is Miss Genevieve Clendenin, a popular society girl, in one of the especially admired costumes.

© Underwood & Underwood.

We step aboard the U. S. S. New Mexico, and interrupt a very pretty domestic scene. They're regular, sure-nuff navy beans, and this is a regulation navy mouthful.

Central News Service.

Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, in the stunning costume she wore at the Carnaval de Victoire.

© Underwood & Underwood.

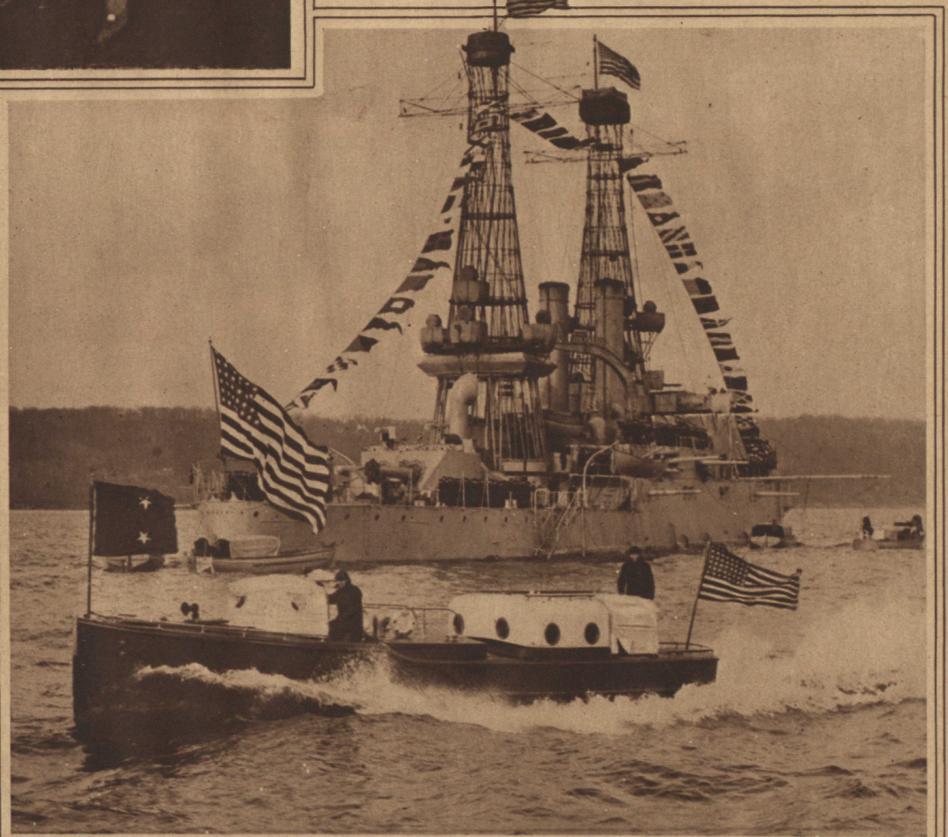

Mrs. Josephus Daniels and her mother, Mrs. Bagley, visiting boys in the Brooklyn Naval Hospital.

Tribune Graphic Service.

The great naval parade on Fifth Avenue was halted for a moment, and this young lady simply couldn't resist the temptation to skip out from her perch in the bleachers and offer tribute in the shape of the very reddest apple on the corner fruit stand.

© Underwood & Underwood.

Admiral Gleaves's speedy launch darting past the U. S. S. Wisconsin during the great naval pageant.

Paul Thompson.