Grim Work of War Carried On With Varied Appliances Against Bitter Opposition of the Enemy

FRENCH SHARPSHOOTERS AT A POINT OF VANTAGE IN A RUINED HOUSE THAT AFFORDS THEM SOME PROTECTION AGAINST RETURN FIRE.
(© Kadel & Herbert.)

FRENCH SOLDIERS RECONNOITRING IN THE VILLAGE OF VAUXAILLON-EN-LAONNAIS AND MAKING THEIR WAY OVER INTRICATE WIRE ENTANGLEMENTS.
(© International Film Service.)

Above are shown British wounded passing through the French lines during the big German drive in Flanders. One man, despite his wound, retains a keen interest in what is going on.

(At left)—French troops are here seen marching through a village to the firing line, accompanied by a British big gun brought up to support them in the coming combat.

French Alpine Chasseurs at their trying work in the snows of the Vosges Mountains, are depicted in the picture at the right. They are clothed in white so as to be less easily detected. ➳